GENERAL INFORMATION

It has always been our policy to provide accurate and comprehensive directory service to those communities that desire the "finest". We realize however that some errors and omissions are inevitable and earnestly request that these be brought to our attention. These errors and omissions will be corrected in the next edition of the directory. It is only through the interest of the subscribers and users of the directory that each new edition can surpass the last.

In the public interest the use of this directory for any other purpose than as a reference volume or reproduction of any part of this directory is expressly prohibited without written permission from the publisher.

We are proud of our membership in the association of North American Directory Publishers. The members of this association are constantly striving to improve the products offered to the communities they serve. It is through the association's attitude of mutual sharing that many of the industries' advancements have been made.

HISTORY

The Publisher gratefully acknowledges the effort made by the Middlesex Chamber of Commerce in furnishing the following community statistics and information.

Middletown, Connecticut

Middletown is a busy crossroads community, full of vigor and stamina, with an interesting history, where much is happening.

Located at the head of the Connecticut Valley on the western banks of the Connecticut River, midway between Hartford and New Haven, it is over three hundred years old and still going strong.

Founded in 1650 and incorporated the following year, Middletown was at one time the largest city in the state, an important seaport, shipbuilding, manufacturing, agriculture and mercantile center. Evolving from rural Puritan origins, the town has experienced periods of rapid industrial rise and decline to a current cycle of renewal and development. During the past decade or so, Middletown has become a hub of activity for a large area population of over 100,000 in the city and neighboring towns.

The city covers nearly 43 square miles, lies within close proximity to Long Island Sound and its beaches, and is within easy reach of Boston and New York City.

Wesleyan University, since its founding in 1831, has contributed to the character and economy of the community. Today, on a campus of over 100 acres, the school has become a nationally recognized institution of higher learning with a large student body and prominent faculty.

In sum, Middletown can be best characterized as a moderately growing residential, commercial and university community with substantial industrial and human resources. Easy accessibility by a network of highways, a reasonable climate, sprawling boundaries, heterogeneous make-up, and excellent housing and educational facilities are among the appealing factors continuously attracting new residents and businesses alike.

Now with significant Federal and State assistance, major changes and improvements are taking place in the downtown and the environs of the city; helping forge a new image while preserving the charm of its earlier heritage.

BRIEF HISTORICAL BACKGROUND

Middletown was founded by Europeans, when a Dutch sailing vessel anchored near the shore after making its way up the river from the Long Island Sound. In 1614, Adrian Block, Dutch navigator, debarked at a point near the present Middletown waterfront; however, Dutch colonization attempts were shortlived, giving way to English-speaking settlers who had fled from the Massachusetts Bay Colony seeking greater religious freedom and autonomy.

Originally the area had been called Mattabeseck after a local Indian tribe, but in 1651 it acquired its present name as a means of identifying its geographical location between the Sound and the upper river settlement of Windsor.

The first settlers purchased their land from the Indians, including much of the waterfront, and devoted themselves largely to matters of farming and worship. Eventually they merged in federation with other colonies in the state, producing the first written constitution, a forerunner to the United States Constitution.

Development picked up in the latter 17th Century and Middletown became a thriving seaport because of its wide and deep channel; and ultimately a shipbuilding center. The steamboat era in the 19th Century, when passenger and commercial operations depended heavily on the river, gradually yielded to the railroad which, in turn, spun its strands of iron up and down the river banks and east and west, accelerating the growth of agriculture, manufacturing and other industries.

Immigration in the late 19th and early 20th Centuries supplied the muscle for industrial expansion, helped along by spurts of activity during both world wars. Rapid urbanization as Americans took the road and the lingering blight of the Depression caused a general demise here as in many of the older New England towns. Subsequently, urban planners, encouraged by Federal assistance programs, including the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development started evaluating the need for development to prevent stagnation and to assure continuing growth. The fruits of these efforts are part of Middletown's dramatic comeback.

Portland, Connecticut

Portland, formerly East Middletown, was settled about 1690. It was made a parish in 1714, and a separate town in 1841. The name was taken from Portland in the English county of Dorset, where there is extensive quarrying.

Portland is located in Middlesex County in central Connecticut, about 12 miles south of Hartford. It is bordered on the north by the Town of Glastonbury, on the east by the Town of East Hampton, on the south by the Connecticut River and on the west by the Connecticut River, the City of Middletown and the Town of Cromwell.

In the early days of the town's history, the two principle industries were the quarrying of brownstone, around which Portland was built, and ship-building. The first vessel to be built at the Gildersleeve Shipyard in 1741, was a schooner of 90 tons. During the Revolution, a number of warships were launched from here, and others during the War of 1812. At a very early date there were two grist mills that supplied flour to the Continental soldiers stationed at New London. Other industries were 15 cider mills, two cider brandy distilleries, a comb factory, a casting foundry, two sawmills, a wagon factory and a brick yard. As early as 1669 permission was granted to build boats on the bank of the Connecticut River, and as time went on wharves and building yards appeared along the shore. Most of the boats made were for coastal trade and West Indies trade.

Today storage and distribution of oil and gasoline have become a major enterprise. National and local companies have taken advantage of the deep water dockage facilities on the river, which, combined with the central location of the town, make this an advantageous storage and distribution center.

In Strickland Quarry, the "mineralogist's paradise", about 25 varieties of minerals have been found, the largest assortment of any Connecticut mine. The commercial products have been feldspar for pottery and white mica for electrical insulation.

There are 20 manufacturing concerns today in Portland producing fertilizers, insecticides, rubber products, coolants, corrugated boxes and various metal and machined products. There are also extensive tobacco fields and greenhouses.

New industries are encouraged to located in Portland. The local Industrial Development Commission is active in promoting industrial developments and is in a position to bring interested parties together for the purpose of arranging favorable sale and lease agreements. Labor management relations in Portland are harmonious. Virtually all workers receive the same benefits as workers in other areas, including vacation time, paid holidays, hospitalization, pension plans and cost of living allowances.

All we can tell you is that men who don't smoke live about 6 years longer than men who do smoke.*

If you want someone to help you stop smoking cigarettes, contact your American Cancer Society.

*This fact taken from a research study is based on the smoker who at age 25 smokes about a pack and a half of cigarettes a day.
